OKR LEADERSHIP MASTERCLASS CURRICULUM

Sustainable OKR success depends on the quality of Leadership, the company culture, and deploying the most effective OKR frameworks for your organization or for those whom you coach.

Google attributes its exponential growth and success not only to OKRs but also to a values-based culture and strong leadership.

Being an OKR leader means you understand how to inspire your teams toward greater heights and unlock their potential. It also means that you have the skill to communicate clearly and in a way that supports company and individual growth.

An OKR Leader understands that OKRs are an Agile goal-setting methodology and that OKRs complement Scrum and Agile project management.

At the core of Leadership lies the ability to dramatically uplift the engagement levels of team members and to empower others to also become leaders. Leaders are the custodians of the company culture and through this course, you will gain practical insights on how to build and maintain a positive and engaging high-performance culture.

Where there are a lack of leadership and clear communication a toxic culture is often the outcome. Within a toxic culture, it is extremely hard, if not impossible to perform in a sustainable way.

An OKR leader also ensures that their OKR frameworks are both quality and quantity orientated, aligned to the vision of the company and that key results and objectives are met through collaborations and teamwork excellence.

Audience: Business Owners, Coaches, and consultants, CEOs, HR directors and managers, Performance coaches and trainers.
